Introduction to Licensed Occupations in Wyoming

by: Lisa Knapp, Senior Research Analyst

The Directory of Licensed Occupations in Wyoming 2017, compiled by the Research & Planning (R&P) section of the Wyoming Department of Workforce Services, provides detailed information about license requirements and related information for the 98 occupations required to have a license by the state of Wyoming.

Job licenses or certifications indicate that a person has specific knowledge, education, or skills to perform a job. These occupational licenses are awarded by governmental licensing agencies and give an individual the legal authority to work in an occupation. In order to qualify for a license, the worker typically must complete a predetermined amount of education or training and pass any mandated exams (Torpey, 2016). There may also be fees associated with obtaining and maintaining a license and different states may require different occupations to be licensed, and the licensing requirements may also vary by state (Kleiner & Krueger, 2011).

In the United States, discussions regarding the licensing of occupations date back at least as far as Adam Smith's book, The Wealth of Nations (Kleiner & Kruger, 2009). In the 1950's, only 5% of the country's workforce had a job requiring a license, but as of 2015, between 22% (Torpey, 2016) and 30% of the workforce had jobs requiring a license (Hershbein, Boddy, & Kearney, 2015). The purpose of licensing certain occupations is to protect the public against incompetent, untrustworthy, or irresponsible practitioners (Kleiner & Krueger, 2011).

There are 98 occupations in Wyoming that require a license, and 46 licensing boards oversee the administration and enforcement of these licenses. Table 1 (see page 11) shows the names of these boards, the title of each license, the typical education level required for each occupation, and the Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) code for the occupation. This year, three occupations (physical therapy assistants, certified medication aides, and mortgage loan lenders) were added to the directory because they had been excluded from previous iterations of this publication. Two occupations, law enforcement officers (Wyoming Highway Patrol) and law enforcement officers/police officers/deputy sheriffs, were combined into one occupation (peace officers) and another two occupations, funeral directors and crematory operators, were combined into one occupation (funeral service providers). Finally, collection agencies were removed as a licensed occupation because the laws pertain to the licensing of businesses rather than the licensing of individuals.

Average and entry level wage data are included in this directory for all occupations. These wages came from the Occupational Employment Statistics (OES) survey, which can be found at <http://doe.state.wy.us/LMI/oes.htm>. For the purposes of this publication, the 25th percentile wage was listed for the entry wage and the mean wage was listed for the average wage.

Career Decisions

The information found in the Directory of Licensed Occupations can be combined with several of R&P's other data sources to provide a more complete picture of a selected occupation within the context of Wyoming's economy. The first of these data sources is the Wyoming New Hires Job Skills Survey (New Hires Survey). This questionnaire is sent out quarterly to employers who have hired an employee that has never worked for that company in the past. The survey is designed to collect information about that employee's job, such as job title and duties, wages and benefits, education and qualifications, and necessary job skills. The methodology and results of this survey are found at <http://doe.state.wy.us/LMI/newhires.htm>.

A second data source is the Wyoming Wage Survey, which is based on data collected from the OES program. The Wyoming Wage Survey contains wage information for occupations at the state, county, planning region, and metropolitan statistical area levels, as well as by industry. Also included are Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) codes and descriptions for each occupation, the occupation's wage range compared to that of all the occupations within the same occupational group and compared to all occupations combined, and lists of the industries that employ the most people in that occupation and which industries pay the highest wages for that occupation. More information on the Wyoming Wage Survey is available at <http://doe.state.wy.us/LMI/oes.htm>.

Finally, R&P produces short-term and long-term occupational projections on a yearly basis. These projections can be found at <http://doe.state.wy.us/LMI/projections.htm>. Short-term projections show the projected annual total job openings for occupations, which consists of the projected number of new job openings plus the projected number of jobs that will need replacement workers, over a two-year period. The long-term projections contain the same information over a 10-year period.

An example of how to combine licensing information from the Directory of Licensed Occupations with these other sources of labor market data is presented in the Box (see page 9). Registered nurses (SOC 29-1141), found on page 191 of this directory, are licensed by the Wyoming Board of Nursing. Applicants are required to graduate from a state-approved program of study, successfully pass a national nursing licensure exam, and meet a competency requirement. Nursing programs are available at the University of Wyoming, Casper College, Central Wyoming College, Laramie County Community College, Northern Wyoming Community College District, Northwest College, and Western Wyoming Community College. Initial fees for a license by examination costs $190, and it costs $110 every other year to renew that license.

According to the New Hires Survey, there were 926 newly hired registered nurses in 2015, a number that includes nurses who switched jobs at least once during the year, and the average hourly wage for newly hired registered nurses was $26.53. More than half of these registered nurses were offered health insurance (64.9%), retirement benefits (70.5%), and paid time off (62.7%). Employers indicated the most important skills for registered nurses were service orientation (85.8%), critical thinking (88.7%), and reading comprehension (87.1%). The majority of newly hired nurses were female (75.9%) and ages 25-34 (32.4%).

Based on the Wyoming Wage Survey results, the mean wage for all registered nurses as of March 2017 was $30.66. Registered nurses in Natrona County had a mean wage of $29.11, while those in Hot Springs County had a mean wage of $27.24. Within the state as a whole, the largest proportion of nurses were employed in the health care & social assistance industry (79.4%), followed by the public administration industry (13.9%). Median wages (mean wages are not available) for registered nurses in public administration were $33.15 compared to $29.79 for those in health care & social assistance.

Short-term occupational projections indicate a net increase of 135 registered nurse jobs between 2016 and 2018. Combined with 222 replacement openings, there are projected to be 357 jobs open during that two-year period, or 179 jobs per year. In comparison, the long-term projections for 2015 through 2024 project 94 new jobs and 114 replacement jobs for a total of 208 total registered nurse job openings per year.

Conclusion

Requiring practitioners of some occupations to be licensed results in the assurance that these workers have a minimum level of education and competency, and also generally results in higher wages for workers in those occupations compared to those in unlicensed occupations. In Wyoming, 98 occupations require a license and this directory contains the details of obtaining a license for each of these occupations. When combined with information available from other data sources produced by R&P, such as the Wyoming New Hires Job Skills Survey, the Wyoming Wage Survey, and long- and short-term occupational projections, this information can be used to help jobseekers and others make informed decisions on potential jobs.
